SCHOLARSHIPS FOR OVERSEAS INTERCOURSE

Sir Maurice Alexander, Law '10, Gives Suggestion

BRILLIANT CAREER

McGill Graduate is on a Special Mission to Washington

"The establishment of scholarships such as the Rhodes on reciprocal terms between Great Britain and Canada would not only bind their ties of kinship closer together, but would show the position of the Canadian universities, and what they have to offer to British students," declared Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Maurice Alexander, K.B.E., C.M.G., B.A., B.C.L., '10, one of the most distinguished graduates of McGill, in an interview to the "Daily."

Sir Maurice is spending a few days in Montreal on his way to Washington on a special mission for the British Government. He graduated with the highest honours in 1910, winning the gold medal, and until the war was a partner in the well-known law firm of Davidson, Wainwright and Alexander, now Davidson, Wainwright, Elder and Hackett. During his short practice here, Sir Maurice Alexander made a great reputation by his brilliant work. His career in the war was one of the most phenomenal of all Canadians. Joining up at the outbreak of hostilities, his rise was rapid, and he attained the high position of Judge-Advocate-General of the Canadian forces, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was awarded the C.M.G. in 1917, and was subsequently knighted by His Majesty the King. During Viscount Grey's ambassadorship at Washington, Colonel Alexander was First Secretary of the British Embassy. Since then he has been attached to the Foreign Office, and is a Counselor to the British Government. Sir Maurice was a member of the Prime Minister's staff at the recent Cannes conference.

McGill, he said, is undoubtedly recognized as the foremost Canadian university, but many English people still persist that it is situated in Toronto, or some other Canadian city. The appointment of Sir Arthur Currie as principal was viewed with the utmost satisfaction in Great Britain, where his great administrative ability is well known and appreciated. Sir Maurice has McGill very close to (Continued on Page 2.)

HISTORIANS TO HEAR DR. LAING

Dean Will Address Wednesday Meeting at University Club.

The final meeting of the Historical Club is to be held this year, thanks to the generosity of the Honorary President, Dr. Fryer, in the University Club. Ever since its inception some twenty-five years ago, the so-called "Open" Meeting has been the great event in the year's programme of the Club, for besides a full turnout of the undergraduate membership a select list of prominent former members has served to maintain the link between past and present.

The Historical Club has been fortunate in securing Dr. Laing to give the address of the evening. Since his arrival at McGill at the beginning of the year, Dean Laing has made a name for himself, a polished and telling speaker throughout the University. In his address to the Club next Wednesday, he will probably deal in the main with the subject of History as a factor in the Arts education.

According to lists in the hands of the executive at present writing it seems probable that practically the entire membership will be on deck on Wednesday night. Following the address and the refreshments, the executive for the session 1922-23 will be elected by the undergraduate members present.

COLLEGE WIT MAKES MERRY IN TORONTO

Large Number of American Colleges Represented

TO FORM UNION

McGill Represented by Sir Samuel Pepys.

At the present time, when college comics have been receiving some rather severe criticisms, it is pleasant to note the high standard of Canada's college humourist, the Goblin. The Goblin made its debut in the autumn of 1920, and since that time the standard of humour has been steadily improving. Though nominally a Torontonian publication, it is Canadian in scope. It numbers among its contributors, undergraduates of all our large colleges, and its circulation is by no means confined to Toronto. Indeed a large part of its subscribers are members of no university. It is read wherever humour of the better class is appreciated.

Last Saturday a large number of representatives of the American College comics were the Goblin's guests in Toronto. The convention was called in order that steps might be taken to form a union of the various college comics now appearing on the American continent. Though there were a large number of magazines represented, nothing final could be decided upon until the others had been approached. Those present were most enthusiastic in support of the project, and it is expected that the association in the very near future.

While in Toronto the college humourists were present at a brilliant little banquet in Hart House. As can readily be imagined, good humour was the order of the day, when the collegian jesters from such widely divergent points as Alabama and Ontario gathered to exchange their dry humour.

McGill was ably represented by its seventeenth century humourist, Sir Samuel Pepys, who, through intimate knowledge of the ale-house wits of his noted ancestor's time, is ably qualified to give voice to "wise saws and modern instances" when humourist meets humourist.

SUCCESSFUL SING AT STRATHCONA HALL

Last night the music at the "Sing" was of an exceptionally high order. Many of the old familiar hymns were sung fervently.

Miss McKinnon was at the piano, and played in her own inimitable fashion. Eric Crawford rendered a solo. The arrangements for last night's sing were carried out by Sidney Britton.

There will be one or two more sings before the season ends.

LAST "DAILY"

The final issue of the "Daily" for the present session will be published on Wednesday morning, March 29th. Any person or organization having announcements to make concerning events happening later in the year should send them in by tomorrow.

ANNUAL TO HAVE NEW FEATURES

The Illustrated Material is Especially Good.

YEAR REVIEWED.

Si Whiffletree and Samuel Pepys Speak Words of Wisdom

The sale of the 1923 Annual has been going on apace during the last week, and the results have been very gratifying to those in charge. While little publicity has been given to the book, remarks which have been passed by those who are in a position to know its worth, have all been in the highest praise. Indicative of the popularity of the volume is the high percentage of students who have signed the caution money slips now in circulation. All the students in one class and fifty per cent of those in another, have carried out this formality, while one man in Science has ordered four copies, which he intends sending to friends.

Among the features of the book which deserve special notice are the drawings. This department has been under the direction of A. L. Perry, of Architecture, whose work has been a feature of the last three Annuals which have been published. He has personally made the choice of all the drawings which have been used, and he has also contributed many of them himself. Particularly good is an etching which has been received from Chris Marie Meeker, to illustrate one of Si Whiffletree's inimitable letters. This talented artist has recently had a cover accepted by "Judge," and the work she has submitted to the Annual is equal to the standard set by any humorous paper on the continent.

A letter has been received from Si Whiffletree dealing with the pitfalls which beset the path of young and virtuous country maidens in the Windy City. The former Law student speaks as an authority and "makes no bones about it." Pepys also has a word to say to the Editorial board, and this is passed on to all the readers of the book. Articles dealing with the new gymnasium, the new professors at the University, the recent Graduate reunion, and many other topics are included.

The volume is a return to the old style Annuals which have proved so popular in the past. The photographs and write-ups have been carefully (Continued on Page 3.)

GLEE CLUB CHOSE NEXT EXECUTIVE

Elections and Discussion of Programme at Final Meeting.

A well attended meeting, held on Saturday, in the Union, ended the season for the Glee Club.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected and are as follows:—

President—R. A. Moore.
Vice-President—E. A. Sherrard.
Secretary—Litchfield.
Daily Reporter—R. G. Simpson.

The nominations were carefully considered, and the members are quite satisfied that they have placed the Club's future in the hands of a competent executive.

Moore is well known for his executive ability and also as a musician. A brief financial report was read, which gave the Club still more reason to feel that it had justified its existence, and that the year had been in every way successful.

That the Glee Club could certainly be excused for feeling very optimistic was the keynote of Crawford's remarks. He expressed his thanks for the loyal way in which the members had backed him up, as president of the Club during the past year. He regretted leaving McGill, but said he would try to keep in touch with members of the Club and help it to the best of his ability.

Litchfield expressed the wish that a vote of thanks should be tendered to Mr. Key, which was heartily applauded by the meeting.

Le Messurier, on behalf of the members, thanked Mr. Crawford for the zeal he had shown for the welfare of the Club. His untiring efforts had contributed in no small way to the club's successful season.

A MCGILL COMIC.

Elsewhere in this issue reference is made to the Convention of delegates from many college comic magazines held at Toronto over the week-end on the invitation of the Toronto Goblin. This Convention was primarily called for the purpose of forming an association to further the mutual interests of college comics on this continent.

At present the Goblin is the only publication of its kind among all the universities and colleges of this Dominion, and, with the exception of a courtesy-representative from McGill, the Toronto Goblin was, of course, the only Canadian university to be represented. Again and again during the course of the Convention representatives expressed surprise that the students of a university so well known as McGill had as yet taken no steps in this direction.

This is by no means the first time that the question has been mooted. Professor Leacock, one of the foster-fathers of the Goblin, has always held that the list of undergraduate publications at this University will be incomplete as long as McGill is without an avowedly comic magazine.

Naturally the first problem to be encountered would be that of advertising. Of recent years all McGill publications, such as the "Daily," and the Annual have found it far from easy to find any abundance of financial backing from the city. The situation may well be, and is different in other collegiate centres, but the fact remains that the advertising will have to change very considerably if any body of undergraduates at McGill are to operate any kind of comic magazine without danger of jeopardizing not only the new-born venture, but also any other publications that may already be in operation at McGill.

For the present it would seem as if our mirthsome friend, the Goblin of Toronto, will be constrained to uphold the honour of undergraduate humour for all Canada. It might well be in worse hands.

ONTARIO MEN MEET TONIGHT AT EIGHT

Short Smoker to Cheer Hard Working Student

The Ontario Club is holding its last smoker of the year in the Union Cafeteria at eight o'clock this evening. A special programme has been arranged, and from the viewpoint of the hard working student it is well indeed. It will start fifteen minutes earlier than usual, and should only last about two hours, but this will be sufficient to have the good time which characterizes all this club's entertainments. The election of officers for the coming year will also be held at this meeting.

There will be no speakers on the programme, but Prof. H. Tate, who gave such an entertaining talk at the last smoker, will very likely be present. Drummond, of Medicine, will favor with a few vocal solos, and the Ontario Club Orchestra will keep up the spirit of the thing. The executive are introducing a novel feature, and blindfold boxing will supply the added laughter. The usual generous supply of smokes and refreshments will not be lacking.

As the officers and representatives for next year will be elected, and any questions concerning next year's policy are to be discussed, the usual large crowd are expected to be on hand. All members or prospective members are, of course, invited to come and enjoy themselves.

A MOONLIGHT FANTASY.

It is the midnight hour;—the beautiful sea,
Calm as a cloudless heaven, the heaven discloses,
While many a sparkling star, in quiet glees,
Far down within the watery sky reposes.

How like a monarch would she glide,
While the husht billow kissed her side
With low and lulling tone,
Some stately ship, that from afar
Shone sudden like a rising star,
With all her bravery on!

Haste! Haste! before the moonshine dies
Dissolved amid the morning skies,
While yet the silvery glory lies
Above the sparkling foam;

Bright mid surrounding brightness, thou,
Scattering fresh beauty from thy prow
In pomp and splendour come!

And lo! upon the murmuring waves
A glorious shape appearing!
A broad-winged vessel, through the shower
Of glimmering luster steering!

—John Wilson.

WILLIAM FRASER MACKLAIER A MAN

"Young in Years, Yet Old in Hours."

Casting aside all of the irresponsibility of adolescence, W. F. Macklaier, President of the McGill Daily, and President-elect of the Law Undergraduate Society, to-day blooms forth in all of the glory of manhood. The long awaited day, his twenty-first birthday, has at last arrived; his boyhood days, that seemed so long in passing, now appear to him as but a few short hours. As Milton wrote:

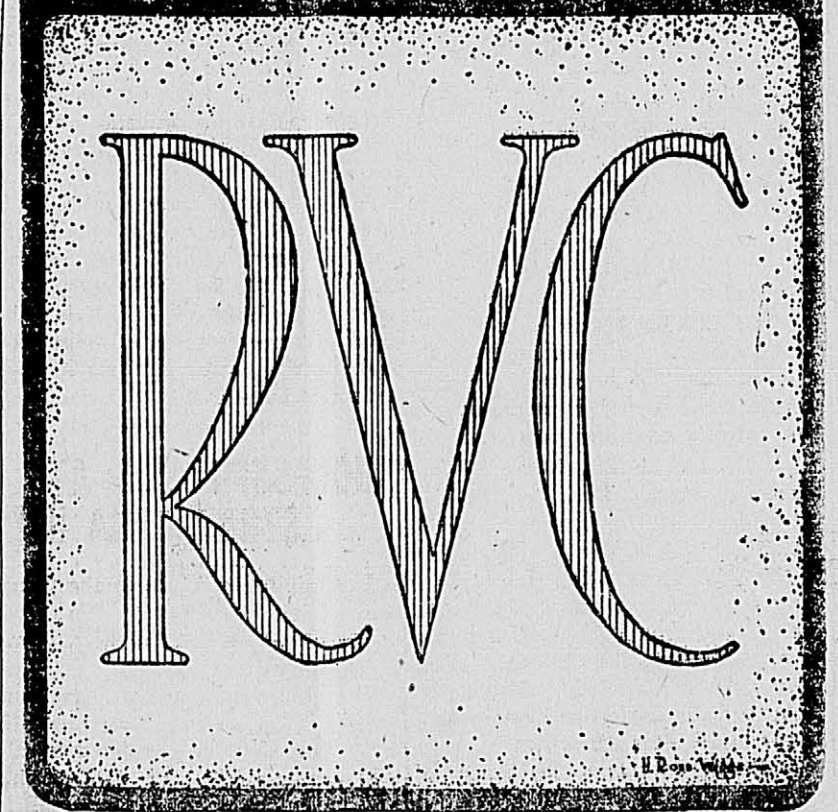

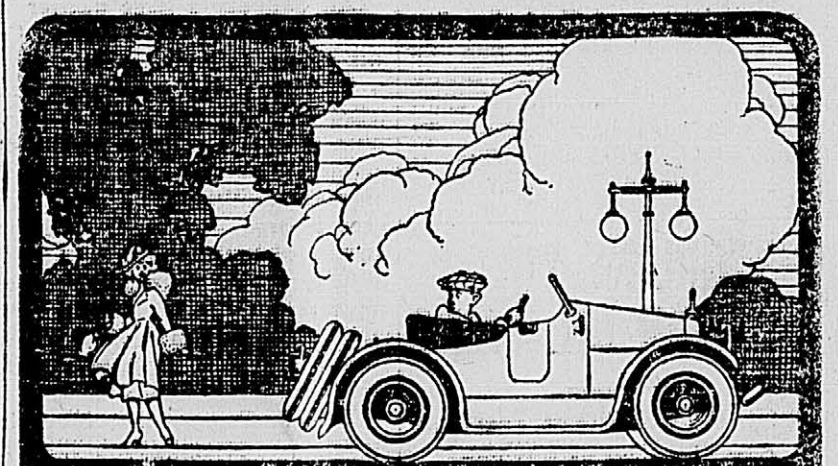

"How soon hath Time the subtle thief of youth,
Stolen on his wing my tender twentieth year!
My hasting days fly on with full career,
But my late spring no bud or blossom sheweth.
Perhaps my semblance might deceive the truth,
That I to manhood am arriv'd so near,
The inward ripeness doth much less appear,
That soon more timely-happy spirits indueth.
Yet be it less or more, or soon or slow,
It shall be still in strictest measure even,
To that same lot, however mean, or high,
Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heaven;
All is, if I have grace to use it so,
As ever in my great task Masters eye."

Gone are the days when he could idle away the passing hours without any thoughts of the morrow. Life must now be faced sternly and the problems of manhood must be solved. Woe be to the person who dares to suggest that the graduate into manhood's class should any more indulge in the childish pranks that were his pleasures of yesterday.
No more will the flapper find that her shy advances are met with warm responses; manhood has not time for such foolishness. The coming days for William (no longer "Bill") will be serious days. The past is forgotten; the burden of manhood must now be shouldered manfully.

EXACTLY THAT!

Little Willie, taking a long walk with his Dad, one day saw a sign, "Painless Dentist."
Said Willie: "Dad, what is a painless dentist?"
"A painless dentist, my son, is a liar."

PEPYS AT MCGILL

Sunday, March 26th (Lord's Day).
—Back this day unto my lodgings on Durocher Street with a slight ache in my head and a deal of pleasing memories of them whom I see much mistook as to call the Puritans of Toronto, for if such they be in sooth, then truly they have the excellent courtesy to disguise all semblance of the same in the entertainment of those who come to them out of more civilized parts. But Lord, what queer folk these United Statesmen be, for scarcely were they able to consume a thimbleful or soe of wine of Oporto or some such childish liquor before they were straitway reduced to state a man of sterner parts might well be in, had he quaffed a whole hoghead of a strong cordial, and in sooth I no longer marvel that there should be stern enactments in their land against the drinking of aught more potent than goat's milk, for Providence clearly gave them not the stomach that other men have. Much joyed to find that the divers structures upon their Campus at Toronto are built after the fashion of those at Oxonford in England which gives to all things a most excellent academic savour, and I taking great delight to dine in Hall and such like things. One place there is that they doe call for a merrie jest the Chart-house which is to them for the same uses as our Union, but Lord, it savours more of a great palace than of any chart-house I ever did see. In all right pleased with my welcome and refreshment there, and though they came not to my meeting with a musick of tabours and brass trumpets it matter not, for I found that they onlie welcome in such a fashion princes of the blood royal and a certain Mr. Ben Spence when he doth visit there. So home much jostled upon the trayne, and it arriving in about eleven of the clock I had the ill fortune to meet the good people who had betaken them to worship as they were leaving thence, which did me no small annoyance.

VARSAITY STUDENTS RUN SUMMER HOTEL

Promising Project Launched by Dent. Undergrads

The enterprise of college students in lucratively occupying themselves during the summer months is proverbial, but it remains for a Toronto University dental student, Mr. R. A. Williams, to evolve a scheme which smacks of the Napoleonic in its magnitude.

The scene of Mr. Williams' activities is Glen Island, situated on the Bay of Quinte, and known as the Hawaii of Canada. For several years, Glen Island was the private summer home of a wealthy American. Recently, however it was acquired by a group of Varsity students headed by R. A. Williams. The entire property has been converted into a modern summer resort featuring all the comforts and pleasure giving devices concomitant with a place of this nature.

The island differs from most summer resorts in the unique way in which the guests are housed. There is a series of cottages extending from one end of the island to the other, each one capable of accommodating from one to eight persons.

Realizing the importance of tasty, well-cooked meals, no pains have been spared to provide the best possible results in the kitchens. The island farm will supply the chef with an abundance of cream, butter, eggs, etc., in addition to all kinds of fresh vegetables.

Sanitary arrangements are of the very best, and the cottages will be kept clean and neat by an efficient staff of helpers, the majority of whom are undergraduates from the University of Toronto.

Glen Island will be open to guests on June 15th, and McGill students and their friends could not find a more enjoyable spot to spend a happy week or two. Prospects containing full information may be obtained by writing to the Manager, Glen Island Resort, 233 College St., Toronto.

Extracts from Examination Papers
"Formerly bears and wolves roamed all over the country, but now they are found only in theological gardens."
"The climate was so cold that the inhabitants were forced to live elsewhere."
"He was seventy-two years old, but he looked twice his age."
"The adversaries were placed at equal distances from each other."
"He screamed in silent rage."

We hear that they are reviving the duel in France. It is not nearly so deadly as boxing, because no one ever got hurt by it except one goof who got up early one morning to watch one and caught cold.

NEW SOCIETY MAKES GOOD BEGINNING

First Season of the Physiological Society.

FINE PROSPECTS

Two More Lectures This Year.

No doubt that those who have identified themselves with the activities of the newly-formed Physiological Society during the session will admit that the wealth of interest and information obtained from the meetings has proved the launching of the Society exceedingly worth while. As always obtains in connection with a new venture, there have been many difficulties to face, but these have apparently been only inspirational to the keen men on the executive—judging by the results achieved.

Building on the experience of this year, and considering the fact that the new Library in the now almost completed Biological Building, together with a full-time librarian, will be at the disposal of members next session, it is by no means daring to augur a most prosperous time for the Society during the coming year.

There yet remain two more meetings, however, to be held this term. On Wednesday evening of this week at 8.15 o'clock (note particularly the new date and time) Dr. J. C. Armour and C. J. Tidmarsh are to give the results of their recent research work in the Department of Physiology.

Dr. Armour, who is to speak on "Some Functions of the Omentum," will introduce the early views of Aristotle and others on this particular structure of the animal organism, and also elucidate in his inimitable manner points regarding various structural and pathological evidences which indicate the nature of the omental function. The results of Dr. Armour's own work on the eventual disposition of foreign bodies in the abdomen will undoubtedly evoke the keenest interest.

Tidmarsh will speak on "Experiments on the Contraction of White Connective Tissue Fibres." A brief historical sketch, including the work of various investigators on connective tissue contraction under the influence of heat and of certain chemical reagents, will be followed by an account of the speaker's own experimental findings. Lantern views will be used to illustrate some of the more interesting points.

Important matters regarding the Constitution of the Society and the election of officers are also to be dealt with at Wednesday's meeting, and, in view of this and the mental feast in store, it is unnecessary to urge a full attendance of members. To physiologists of the gentler persuasion it may also be intimated that no objection in the by-laws or elsewhere debars their attendance at meetings.

Members who have library books overdue are kindly requested to return them at Wednesday's meeting, or as soon thereafter as possible. The Library is open on Mondays and Fridays from 1 to 2 p.m.

GLEE CLUB CHOSE NEW EXECUTIVE

The Glee Club will start next session as soon as possible, and will in all probability put on two concerts, one before Christmas and the other some time in March. An early start will thus provide plenty of time for thorough preparation of its new numbers. New music is being ordered from England, and will be ready for use at the first practice.

All lovers of Glee are urged to return out next year to the very first rehearsal, and help make the year a memorable one in the history of the Glee Club. The only qualification necessary is that of being able to whistle a tune.

Miss Hurlbatt and Sir Arthur Currie have shown concrete evidence of their interest in the Club, and it has the good wishes of a large number of people in the city. Realizing that big things are expected from it, the Club hopes for the interested support of the student body in order that these expectations will be fully justified.

POISON PREFERRED.

An Irishman was sitting in a station smoking when a woman came in and sitting beside him, remarked: "Sir, if you were a gentleman, you would not smoke here."
"Mum," he said, "if ye wuz a lady, ye'd sit farther away."
Pretty soon the woman burst forth again: "If you were my husband, I'd give you poison."
"Well, mum," he returned, as he puffed away at his pipe, "if yew uz my wife, I'd take it."

Argentina is more than five times the size of Germany, and has approximately 8,500,000 inhabitants, according to best estimates.

Liggett's All-Cream Ice-Cream
Ice Cream, when properly made is one of our most nourishing and wholesome foods. Liggett's Ice Cream is all of that and is made under the strictest sanitary precautions from pure cream, best granulated sugar and pure fruits, in our modern day-light factory. Liggett's Ice Cream is obtainable at our Soda Fountains and Tea Rooms, also in pint bricks to take home and give the family a treat.

FINAL MEETING OF RIFLE CLUB

Officers Elected and Plans Discussed.

At an enthusiastic meeting held in Strathcona Hall, the McGill Intercollegiate Rifle Club elected their officers for next year. Ex-Dean Birkett was elected Honorary President, and Dr. Tait, Honorary Vice-President. Both of these men have shown an active interest in the work of the club during the past year, and have done much to encourage the sport at McGill.

For next year H. E. Emmons was elected President by acclamation. The other contests were close. The position of vice-president was awarded to J. O. Frazer. The closest contest was for secretary, it being necessary to have two ballots on the office, the first being a tie. F. W. Mooney was elected treasurer.

The plans for the coming year were then discussed, and it was made evident that every effort is going to be made to encourage men to turn out. This year three meets were held. Various trophies were won in competition between the team members. Although Toronto won the intercollegiate meet it is hoped that luck will change the weather conditions a bit to give the Red and White a real chance next fall.

GIANTS TO PLAY PRINCETON NINE

First Contest Scheduled by Princeton With World's Champion Ball Team.

Princeton's Varsity baseball team has scheduled a game with the New York Giants, according to a recent announcement by the Nassau Athletic Association. The game will be played at the Polo Grounds on April 11. No Princeton team has met the New York Giants since 1886. This also will be the first time for any Princeton organization to meet a team holding a world's professional championship.

The Princeton schedule calls for 30 games, opening on April 1 with New York University. The Commencement game with Yale will be played on June 17. Battery practice has already begun, but it is being held in the cage until the weather will permit outside work.

Coach Clarke, who has directed baseball at Princeton for the past few years, arrived shortly after the mid-year examinations to take charge. He will have nine letter men back from last year's squad.

KEEP YOUR MIND ALERT.

One of the greatest fields open to the engineer of to-day is that of invention. The problems of the inventor of the present generation—centre about the greatest problems of saving human labor. Every thinking man is constantly on the lookout for methods of doing things that will require less human labor. Great manufacturing concerns have efficiency experts working to the best way of doing the other night who believed that hinders the course of progress is mental laziness.

Many of us have a tendency to be lazy about our thinking. This in itself is not dangerous, because the habit can easily be corrected, but too many of us continue to allow lazy thinking habits to develop unchecked. The lazy thinker always has an excuse ready. It is easier to complain of being exhausted rather than exercise the mind.

Find out for yourself if your mind is working or shirking. The best way to do this is to test your ability to hold your mind on one subject without allowing it to wander to other thoughts. If you can take a proposition, which requires reasoning to reach a definite conclusion, and follow through the different steps to the final answer without other thoughts entering your mind, you can feel that your mind is ready and willing to work. If you find that from time to time you must climb back to the problem at hand, it might be well to exercise the mind to a greater extent.

If you find your brain is lazy, give it a little more exercise. Start carefully at first and increase the effort daily, and it will not be long before the mind will respond with ease to the tasks at hand.

HARVARD MENORAH DEBATERS VICTORS

Maccabean Circle Team Loses Debate to Americans.

A team of debaters representing the Harvard Menorah Society, succeeded in gaining the decision over the Maccabean Circle team in a closely contested debate held at the Union on Saturday night.

The McGill men, S. Mirsky, B.Sc., Med. '24, and G. Franklin, Dent. '22, upheld the affirmative side of the proposition: "Resolved that with the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine it will be in the best interests of civilization for the Jews of the rest of the world to assimilate." H. Starr, A.B., and B. Sperling, A.B., made up the visiting team. The judges were Professor Tait, Dr. E. C. Levine, and Mr. Benjamin Robinson, B.C.L.

The meeting was well attended, and the efforts of the speakers were very well received. Otto Klineberg, M.A., Med. '24, President of the Circle, occupied the chair, and welcomed the visiting debaters as the first American Menorah team to meet the local society. He expressed the hope that a return meeting would be arranged in the near future.

Previous to the commencement of the debate a delightful piano solo was rendered by Miss A. Yellin.

G. Franklin, the first speaker for the Maccabean Circle, argued that with the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine, the Jew in the Diaspora will no longer be required to fight against assimilation in order to perpetuate Jewish nationalism and culture. He maintained that great contributions to civilization were made by nations, not individuals, and emphasized the fact that the individual derives his inspiration from the nation. It would thus be in the best interests of civilization for the Jews to become fully assimilated.

Mr. B. Sperling, for the negative side, based his convictions on the fact that eleven million Jews throughout the world will be of more help to the one million Jews in Palestine than to the fifteen hundred million other people. He declared emphatically that to perpetuate Jewish culture assimilation in its fullest sense must be avoided.

Citing Greek and Roman culture as examples, he argued that highest contributions had been made by nations that were not confined to their own boundaries.

S. Mirsky, Med. '24, for the affirmative, declared that total assimilation would wipe out the distinction between Jew and non-Jew, wipe out anti-Semitism and give the Jew a free hand to make his contributions unhampered.

Mr. Starr, for the Harvard team, again referred to the Greeks and Romans, pointing out that the scholars of these two great nations had failed to solidly perpetuate their respective civilizations; so that to-day, we study Greek as a dead language, and Greek civilization as a lost civilization. We do not want Hebrew to become definitely a dead language, or Jewish culture a subject for archaeologists.

Dr. Levine, in giving the decision to the Harvard Menorah, complimented the speakers on their excellent presentation of the subject.

prepared, and one page is devoted to each club in the college. For the first time colored illustrations have been used. The cover and the title page contain two color designs, while a three color picture of the new addition to the Redpath Library will appear as a Frontispiece. The cost of this last illustration alone will run into three figures.

Enquiries have been received by the Board in charge as to the procedure which must be gone through to secure a book. Arrangements have been made with the Bursar of the University whereby students may pay for the volumes with their caution money. Printed forms have been given to the executives of all classes, which are to be signed by those wishing to buy the book. No cash payment is to be made, and delivery of the Annual will immediately follow its publication. At present only one thousand copies have been ordered from the printers. This leaves four hundred and fifty books to be disposed of outside the junior years. Indications are that an order of several hundred extra copies will be necessary, but this will not be done unless the sales warrant it. It is essential that all those intending to buy a copy sign the forms immediately, as the selling campaign will soon be discontinued and absolutely no further orders taken.

Prof.—This is the third time that you have been late to class. Don't you know that you can't stay the night of time?
Rat.—Oh, I don't know. I just stopped a couple of minutes down the street.

A SURE WAY TO REDUCE.

"I think I'm falling off," said the fat lady as the scale turned.

Tea will be served in the Common Room this afternoon, from 4.30 to 5.30 o'clock. R. V. C. students, including those in the Department of Physical Education, are invited to meet Miss Kilpatrick, who is a missionary returned from India. Miss Alma Jackson is going to sing.

"How do you do, my dear?" said a pompous old lady to a shy little child. "Quite well, thank you," replied the child, politely. "Then," said the old lady, with a frown, "why don't you ask me how I am?" "Because I don't want to know," the child answered, simply.

THE MIDNIGHT HOUR

Midnight sessions are among the most enjoyable experiences in college life. No classroom discussion can possibly take the place of the friendly, rambling, soul-revealing sort of argument that most of us carry in our memories as the choicest parts of our undergraduate days. Count not that time lost which is stolen from studies and dull, profitable education, to drag discussion through interminable windings while the room is filled with the atmosphere of philosophy and blue tobacco smoke, and the hands of the alarm clock, which is to ring at 7 a.m., slowly move around to 4 o'clock in the morning.

This is the time when friendship is tested, when toleration, and fair-mindedness are taxed to the limit, when Utopian schemes are advanced to reform religion, college politics, or the social system. That is the time when generous or impracticable impulses have full sway, when man meets man without his deceiving mask of manner and custom, on a basis of complete acceptance and equality. That is the time when a man forgets that he has always considered it actually immodest to expose his own feelings and beliefs, and when he speaks the thoughts that are in his mind with full assurance of understanding. That is the time when the friends are made whom we mean to keep through life with us.—Columbia Spectator.

Jones was talking to some friends of a fishing trip he was contemplating on his holiday. "Are there any trout up there?" questioned one of the friends. "Trout! Thousands of 'em," replied the other enthusiastically. "Will they bite easily?" "Will they?" reiterated Jones. "Why they're absolutely vicious. A man has to hide behind a tree to bait his hook."

George, who lives in London, happened to meet the vicar of his native parish the other day. He asked after some of his old acquaintances.

"And old Mr. Jones," he asked, "have you seen him lately?" The vicar shook his head. "I shall never see him again," he answered, slowly. "Mr. Jones has gone to Heaven."

At dinner in England the principal guest was Kaiser Wilhelm II. Some one remarked, in the course of the conversation, "As the immortal William said, 'There is a tide in the affairs of men, et cetera.'"

The Kaiser turned to the speaker and asked, "Did I say that? I don't remember."

When the story was repeated at tea one evening, amid the general laughter one lady said with a pitying smile: "Of course it was his grandfather they meant."
